Examining the Evidence 7th December 2010 - National Licensing Examinations 7th December 2010, The Institute of Physics, 76 Portland Place, London

Purpose of the symposium:

ASME is planning to hold a series of three symposia under the umbrella title of 'Examining the Evidence'. The aim of these events is to provide a forum where senior medical school faculty, regulatory bodies, medical education providers and policy makers can meet with international experts to discuss and debate current issues of critical importance in medical education. The format of these events will be specifically designed to allow participants the maximum opportunity to discuss issues and share challenges. The first of these symposia, organised in collaboration with colleagues from the British Educational Research Association, focuses on the use of National Licensing Examinations for students graduating from medical school
